

Carrie

(Inspired by the classic novel 'Sister Carrie' by Theodore Dreiser. The book was published in 1899 so it's now in the public domain and you can read it here for FREE www.gutenberg.org/ebooks/233)

Three o'clock and time still passes by
He's been walking all night long
The streets are cold when Carrie's gone

Caroline, he's paying for you now
Twenty dollars in her note
It's all she had is all she wrote

And Carrie couldn't care at all
She lived for the day to pray that tomorrows don't come

Saturday, the world's so easy now
She was always needing more
Didn't want the life before

Following the blindness of her heart
Sitting by her window still
Longing for something unreal

Six o'clock and George goes to his room
Fifteen cents the ending pays
Distant wings, forgotten days
